. . .more help for the individual

Psychologist joins Carmel schools

Probably not one parent in ten has more than a vague idea of what the Director of Pupil Personnel Services does. Yet for scores, possibly hundreds of children in the Carmel school district, he may be the person who makes the difference between an unhappy, frustrating classroom situation and a learning experience rich in individual achievement and self-satisfaction.

Dr. Richard K. Hawkins, a graduate of Stanford with a doctorate in school psychology and counseling from UCLA, was hired this summer as Carmel's new Director of Pupil Personnel Services.

His role is as broad as the title implies, but basically he sees it as bridging the gap between psychology, which deals with an individual, and teaching, with its emphasis on a group of individuals learning certain specific information.

"We're trying to avoid the image typically associated with the school psychologist," he explained last week. "By that I mean that many school psychologists have been what I would call psychometrists. They give tests. They test for gifted children, or handicapped children, or children with problems. They say what the tests show, and that's about it.

"My concern is much broader, with learning environments as a whole, rather than just children having trouble. I see myself as a problem-solver.

"The traditional psychologist's image is someone working on minds. I don't work on children's minds. I hope to sit down with teachers and parents to help a child who isn't fully benefitting from his school experience.

"In the past, the typical teacher asks for help by asking that testing be done for a certain child. This year, I hope teachers will ask for help to solve a problem. It may require a test, but it may not.

"For instance, I'm especially interested in the side effects of instruction, such as the emphasis put on testing and grades, and how this affects the self-image of the child, and how successful he feels about himself.

"We know that sometimes there has been a great emphasis on tests, and that some children suffer from this. Generally we find that learning difficulties are accompanied by a poor self-image.

CHILD COMES FIRST

"Because a child's feelings of successfulness are awfully important, this is one of the things I hope to look at quite a lot, by visiting classrooms and seeing what is going on, and working with teachers on both general and specific problems."

Some types of testing will certainly continue, he emphasizes, particularly to identify "gifted" children or those who would benefit from classes for the educationally handicapped.

Children put into educationally handicapped classes, he explains, are not "low ability" students, but rather children who need a boost to get over certain difficulties. It is assumed they will spend only a limited amount of time in the E.H. class before rejoining their regular class grouping.

Dr. Hawkins also has a special interest in the motor-perceptual development of pre-school and primary school children.

"While some children learn symbols automatically," he said, "those who don't, need some sort of exercise other than simple drill. They may need to develop their sense of sight and sound and touch to execute the task required.

"I hope to help unravel these complicated learning styles and develop techniques and methods to get over the problem...

"We still tend to think that all kids should learn to read out of the same primer. Yet some children need different approaches, and have different abilities to make their sensory equipment work for them.

"Traditionally most learning is auditory. Then it transfers to visual in reading. But for the child whose visual skills aren't developed enough, there needs to be a special program. Sometimes this means strengthening a weak skill, sometimes it means working around it."

HELP FOR PARENTS, TOO

Dr. Hawkins added that if he had the time he would like to give evening courses for parents to help them understand the learning process and how best to assist their children.

"I'm never sure just exactly how much effort the schools should put out to teach parents," he said, "but I do think it can be very helpful to know something about behavior modification, for instance. It may not be the complete answer to a situation, but it has a lot of application."

He is also in favor of the "Parent Effectiveness Training" programs that have been offered locally, and feels they, too, offer valuable insight for any parent.

Dr. Hawkins will work closely with John Frykman, the district's new community counselor who specializes in individual counseling and drug problems.

They expect to work together on in-service training programs for teachers, and to meet with groups of young people interested in discussing various "value issues." Both agree that a critical need of many young people today is to learn how to solve problems and to find a satisfying life style based on something other than the drug culture.

Before moving with his wife and two-year-old daughter to a home on Paso Mediano in Carmel Valley, Dr. Hawkins was director of guidance, special education and the educational services center for the Roswell Independent Schools in Roswell, N. Mex. He supervised a staff of 20 counselors and four nurses working with a school district of 10,000 children.

Like Frykman, who gave up the position of director of the Drug Treatment Center in the Haight-Ashbury in San Francisco to come here, Dr. Hawkins feels Carmel offers several positive factors. Because the school district is small, he will be able to work closely with teachers, parents and children doing what he likes best—solving problems. And he feels the atmosphere here encourages a look at the broader educational picture as well.

SIXTEEN M.P.H. IN DEEP SAND: Chief Clyde Klaumann test-drives the new Cushman Trackster delivered this week to the City. It will be used primarily for night beach patrol. (photo by Richard Olson)

City gets trackster for beach patrol

The city has acquired a new weapon in its war on beach crime.

A spanking new gas-powered Cushman trackster, capable of travelling 16 m.p.h. in deep sand was delivered and immediately put into service for night beach patrol.

Several years ago, when the city was confronted with a major problem caused by wild beach parties, the Carmel Kiwanis Club donated a beach buggy for use by the police department.

The Department of Public Works soon discovered that the buggy was handy for clean-up jobs on the beach, and shared its use with the police force.

Chief Clyde Klaumann told the Pine Cone the buggy helped "make the beach safe again" and also made life alot easier for the foot patrolmen who used to walk the beach. The old vehicle, which is equipped with large balloon tires, did not have a reverse gear, however, and had limited maneuverability.

At the request of the Police Department, the city purchased the new vehicle at a cost of some $2,600. Its 26.7 cubic-inch engine develops 25 h.p. at 5,000 r.p.m., and is capable of traversing a 45-degree hill with ease. Its rubber treads and fiberglass body can carry four men, or up to 800 pounds, and also features a reverse gear.

In addition to its regular headlights, the vehicle will be equipped with a portable spotlight to aid police in patrolling dark areas of the beach at night.

The simple controls are concentrated in a "joy-stick" type of T-handle,

DR. RICHARD K. HAWKINS, new Director of Pupil Personnel Services for the Carmel School District, finds time to relax in his Carmel Valley home and read to his two-year-old daughter, Alyssa. As a child psychologist and counselor, Dr. Hawkins will be looking at the total "learning environment" in classrooms, as well as assisting with specific learning problems.

Letters to the Editor

To the Mayor and City Council:

Being neither artist, businessman, nor politician, I am at sea over the Sunset Center management crisis. As a retired taxpayer who voted the bond issue for the Center, I am concerned with its management, for I help to pay the bills.

As a participant in the program activities of the Center during the last year I have been most impressed. At last it began to have the appearance of a real art center, not just another volunteer group activity. It began to look professional. As Carmel is noted for its amateurishness, particularly in the arts, it was good to see signs of something better on the way.

Then last week the newspaper accounts of the firing of Mrs. Bowman, our newly acquired manager. And the accounts of those protesting the action. But there was no satisfactory explanation of the whole affair. I do not know Mrs. Bowman, but I can recognize the work of a professional when I see it. So like many others, I have some questions we all would like answered:

Why is Mrs. Bowman being fired?

How has she failed to do her job?

What are the job specifications?

Was she given a copy of them before accepting the job?

Were they discussed with her, and by whom?

Who is her official supervisor?

Is he or she qualified to evaluate the work done?

Has Mrs. Bowman been given proper assistance and cooperation?

Have the Council and the Mayor made every effort to help her do her job to the benefit of all?

Or are they just going along with the opinion of clerks and lesser officials?

What is the opinion of the artistic community with which she works?

Is this opposition because she makes "disturbing waves in quiet waters?"

And are we dealing here with petty personal politics?

Carmel and this whole Peninsula suffers greatly from the diseases of in-breeding. We have no right to bring professional people here, at great cost to themselves, and then expect to reduce them to amateur levels at which we function. One suspects that many of the business and political quarrels reported in the papers have little to do with the abilities of the person opposed, and much to do with the petty vanities of those who want to exercise power.

If this is not the case in the Sunset Center affair, then let's have a taxpayers' meeting on the matter and get this very suspect situation out in the open. Nothing else will be satisfactory.

So, citizens of Carmel, if the city officials will not give us an open meeting shall we call one ourselves? How shall we go about it? Are there some of you who already have this underway? If so can we help? Or do we start it now? My telephone number if 624-2883, and I am a rightly concerned taxpayer, not of the silent majority.

Dear Editor:

The Carmel Close-up (August 6) on Dr. Faul was of great interest. First because you turned attention to an educator, and secondly because Dr. Faul's outlook has stature and gives reassurance to the public that there are educators who know how to bring wisdom and strategy to the direction of a college.

I have been doing some p.r. and editorial work at CTA in Burlingame, and have suggested to them that the close-up view of educators for public observation is needed now to bring public opinion in sympathy with the goals administrators may be trying to fulfill.

Further, the Pine Cone has at last reached its full growth!

Dear Sir:

Glad I didn't waste time and energy stewing over what a poor thing the Pine Cone had become now that it seems to have recaptured the style that many of the previous owners and editors from Perry Newberry on had given it.

I'm not writing for publication but to pass along to Judith Eisner (after compliments on her interview with President Faul) a couple of suggestions for mini-profiles with some particular warm side which adds to Carmel's flavor...

All too often we never know of fascinating lives and doings of people we pass on the street especially when they are not in an officially prominent position.

Thank you for the renewed life in the Pine Cone. We were prepared to give up our subscription—but not now!

Yours truly

Dear Editor:

It pleases me not a little, from a non-partisan standpoint, that we have at least one Deputy Attorney General capable of freeing himself from the "fuzzy-thinking" syndrome that latterly seems to have gripped the would-be legislative propensities of our judiciary, our Supreme Courts in particular...one Chas. O'Brien.

Think back if you will at the herculean and majestic endeavors of our original Constitution builders who constructed a governmental system framed to give needed political authority to diverse regions, by setting up the several autonomies of the individual States with determination of franchise qualifications left to them. Thus to encourage diverse experimentation, adaptation to environment, ethnic trends, suitable regional physical and cultural needs including pride of State.

Contemplate if you will, the eventual overthrow of this wonderful governmental pattern as the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote concept clandestinely moves the body-politic into a centralized-governmental acceptance, with its consequent authoritarianism ensuing.

This sophistry of our judiciary, (higher, rather than lower) is NOT for Charles O'Brien who sees the recent California Supreme Court invalidating the time honoured two-thirds requirement for public bonds as fraught with financial chaos.

Sophistry for the reason that the occasion for a two-thirds vote on public bonds that must find a financial market, has nothing to do with the Court dictum that "the two-thirds rule illegally gives a 'no' vote twice the weight of a 'yes' vote." Actually, the two-thirds vote insures conclusive weight to the prospective bond buyer as to an assurance that the political entity that issued the bonds will not be repudiated at the next election, or any subsequent thereto, in manner to indicate a future unwillingness on the part of the electors to tax themselves to pay off the obligation.

It is primarily a financial matter; indirectly a political one.

One however, that could wreak havor with the misguided political populace when it finds that their would-be bonds do not sell or sell only at some devastatingly exorbitant discount. The question remains, will O'Brien or other succeed in getting the U.S. Supreme Court to see the sophistry in the premises?

Let us all hope so.

Very truly,

UNACCUSTOMED AS CARMEL is to its fairly recent house numbers, for mail delivery outside the city limits, somebody was bound to blow it. It happened to Mrs. Sterling Cottrell. Moving into a numbered house whose previous occupant had continued receiving mail at his post office box, Mrs. Cottrell reported her new address to the P.O.—for delivery—and said P.O. discovered the number had been incorrect ever since it was assigned.

CARMEL'S LITTLE OLD MEN are as sturdy a lot as its L.O.L.'s. Notice how many of them are out taking their morning or afternoon "exercise" with the aid of a cane?

IT CAN HAPPEN elsewhere than Carmel, but here it seems a particular outrage. Upon a request to transfer a phone number to a different name for billing the telephone company sends the applicant this form to fill out:

"The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company is hereby requested to supercede, effective upon the date this form is received properly signed, unless another date is agreed upon as shown below, the Undersigned Outgoing Subscriber by the Undersigned Incoming Subscriber as the subscriber to the telephone service rendered under the telephone number shown above. The undersigned agree to hold the Telephone Company free and harmless of and from any loss, damage and liability which may result from such supercedure."

Then they hold you liable for any unpaid tab—including advertising—and print this provision in bold face type!

xxx

IN THE PARKING LOT of the Post Office the other morning was a big station wagon looking like a camping trip about to begin—boxes, bundles, blankets, sleeping bags, suitcases, and lots of kids already getting into cartons of crackers and cookies. No adults about. They were evidently reluctant to start roughing it without one last check on the post office box!

THE TOUGHEST, MOST DETERMINED young Carmel man has to be the one seen recently wearing a full back pack and pedaling his bicycle up Ocean Avenue between Junipero and Carpenter.

SOME LOCAL JOKERS have painted gigantic footprints, almost two feet long, around Jean Arthur's Scenic Drive home, extending from the water line of the ocean all the way to the Lagoon.

THE TOM TOUSEYS' TRAIN TRIP, from Washington state to Minneapolis as part of their East Coast vacation, was more of a success than Barbara and Tom anticipated. As the Pine Cone commented at the outset, the parents wanted Susan and Tay to ride a Pullman before there weren't any. Susan was quite blase about it in advance.

The senior Touseys conceded the lower berths to the two youngsters, who when bedded down at 9:00 p.m. could still watch scenery in the late dusk of the northerly route. "Gosh," exclaimed Susan, "this is cool. Better than watching TV!"

xxx

WHERE BUT CARMEL could there be such personal and sincere epxressions of sympathy following a family death? In a recent such incident, not only friends but business people took the trouble to make phone calls, write notes, send flowers.

The person who had passed away was a little old Carmel lady who for several years had been physically and mentally incapacitated and required round-the-clock care. The practical nurses on the job did not ask the survivor, "What can we do?" but instead cleaned the house, did the laundry, made guest room beds for expected relatives, and filled the house with flowers.

"Come on," said one woman pulling the arm of another in front of a Dolores Street show. "We can look at dresses anytime. Let's get to the good stuff."

the mayor's report

By BARNEY LAIOLO

This past week I had the pleasure of being presented with a Special Citation for casualty record in behalf of the City of Carmel, by the American Automobile Association. Our City placed 64th in the 26th year. Carmel received this award for no traffic deaths in cities of 10,000 population or less.

This record didn't just happen—it has come about by diligence and conscientious efforts of our fine police department. This fine group of men and women, under the guidance of our Chief, Clyde Klaumann, are to be congratulated for their keen observance and on the spot performances.

I have been in close contact with the department and have watched the operation with great interest. We of Carmel should be proud of the excellent work this department is doing. I congratulate them.

I would like at this time to make a few comments relating to our Special Executive Session with the Carmel Cultural Commission and the City Council and Mrs. Bowman. After a 3½ hour period of conscientious consideration on the part of all concerned, I feel that the decision made was a very fair solution to this complex matter. I personally feel that Mrs. Bowman has contributed greatly to Sunset from the artistic and cultural approach. She has been instrumental in helping raise the attendance and use of the complex.

It is unfortunate that her administrative qualities were not what was required. Mrs. Bowman has been offered a position at Sunset as Program and Publicity Director. I hope she will consider this appointment and work in this capacity. The Commission has been authorized by the Council to seek applicants for the position of Administrative Director. I am certain they will arrive at a good solution of a qualified person for this position.

My quip this week...Make someone happy...Lose your wallet!

Students who will drive automobiles to school will be required to have a parking permit. Permits cost $1 and will be available when school starts.

School opens for all students with an assembly at the football field bleachers at 8:10 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 2. After this meeting, students will be issued class schedules and a full school day will follow.

Remember When?

10 YEARS AGO

From the Pine Cone of August 18, 1960:

The Carmel City Council meets tomorrow night, 8:00 o'clock, city hall to examine its conscience and the proposed budget for 1960-61. The budget is $98,533 greater than the 1959-60 budget.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Pine Cone of August 21, 1945:

"Ear-marked" SAVINGS is your Answer!

"There's BIG news ahead from American manufacturers! Within a few months full time production will be underway, creating all the glorious new wonders you've been patiently waiting for.

"How to pay for them? It's easy when you follow a Plan—like "Ear-marked SAVINGS"—in which you set aside a certain definite amount each pay-day for EACH article you want to buy. Your War Bonds are left to accumulate interest, your SAVINGS bring you the things you want NOW...today! Start an account the very next pay-day!"—Bank advertisement.

50 YEARS AGO

By GARY FRANTZ

Rubella, or German measles, erupts from relative quiescence every few years in this country and like a malevolent stain marks with physical impairment children born to infected mothers. Deafness is one of the most common results.

Deaf children born during the 1965 Rubella epidemic are now reaching school age. Concerned parents and professionals are intent that the condition will affect as little as possible the childrens' full participation in the world around them. Teaching programs like the one begun in Monterey County last year under the direction of Dr. William Oliver are working toward this goal.

This sense of concern led Mrs. Lequita Watkins of Carmel to organize activities this summer for four of the children she had become involved with through the county program. With the help of her daughter, Terrie, and numerous members of the community, Mrs. Watkins met with the children three days a week for six weeks to help them with language training. The group has also taken numerous field trips—child-thrilling jaunts aboard the train through Watsonville and to a Salinas dairy —as well as engaged in craft, dance and swimming lessons.

"It was a spontaneous thing," is the way Mrs. Watkins, a loquacious lady with a pixie hairstyle, describes the inception of the program.

As a county teaching assistant, Mrs. Watkins had been involved with the training of four four-and-five-year-old kids: George, son of Lt. Cdr. and Mrs. Gary Ledbetter of La Mesa Village; Cheryl, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Charles French of La Mesa Village; Dina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Engle of Seaside; Carl, son of Maj. and Mrs. Richard Gustafson, recently transferred from La Mesa Village to England.

At the conclusion of the county program the parents asked Mrs. Watkins to continue working with the children.

"Deaf children can do the same things as other children but they're not included in activities," says Mrs. Watkins. "It's very important they they have contact—that they learn to function in society."

Toward this end, the children were taught swimming by Mrs. Edith Perry at the Carmel Valley home of Col. (ret.) and Mrs. James Coventry and studied dancing with Nancy Lang at All Saints Episcopal Church.

Father David Hill also donated a room at All Saints for a crafts class where Terrie, a seventh grader at Middle School, and Mrs. Watkins led the children in language building skills and games. A favorite game is musical chairs. In another, the group sits in a circle chanting: "Hickety, pickety, bumble bee, can (child's name) sing your name to me?"

Simple as they may appear, games like these help develop lip reading skills and promote language capabilities.

County classes will resume this year at Fort Ord and Salinas with two classes for two-year-olds and three classes for children up to about the age of five.

Seventeen children between the ages of three and five participated in the program last year but this is no indication of the total number of deaf children in the county.

"We can't even estimate," says Mrs. Watkins. "We're trying to get people who have a deaf child, or who know deaf adults, to contact us."

The need for early detection of deafness and early training is essential, she continues. Training can begin at even six months if the condition is diagnosed, giving the child a great head start in adjusting to his deafness.

The need for watchfulness will be further emphasized in 1971 when health authorities predict another surge of Rubella, which some authorities think has already begun in Los Angeles County.

"We don't want to harp on 'handicap' but want to say, look, these children are perfectly capable individuals," says Mrs. Watkins. "They can progress just as far as their natural abilities and desires take them."

But, as in most endeavors, a lot of training is required. Further information on programs for the deaf can be had by calling 242-3236 and 624-5068.

How Middle School classes are scheduled

Children moving from grammar schools into Carmel Middle School this September will find classes scheduled on a different basis from what they have known before.

The Middle School operates on 20 minute time modules, rather than having a flat 40 minutes for each subject for eight periods a day. All classes have at least two modules, language arts has three, and some courses have four modules on a cycle basis.

There are double periods, or longer blocks of time, in language arts, social science, physical education, science and the applied arts. These longer periods are scheduled to fall on different days of the week.

All Middle School students are offered French or Spanish, with the opportunity to take German or Latin as an elective. There is also a wide variety of other electives offered on a cycle basis to give students more options.

Newcomers to Middle School will also notice one other feature different from all other schools. The only time a class bell rings is at the beginning and end of the school day.

BEETHOVEN GOES TO BIG SUR: Mrs. Gregg McKee of Carmel (r.) buys the first tickets for the Beethoven Festival to be held October 17 at Carmel Mission Basilica from festival chairman Gerry Reeves in a sylvan setting at the annual Litton picnic at the State Park last weekend.

Eight new teachers at Carmel Middle School

Six teachers new to the Carmel School District will join the staff at Carmel Middle School this year, plus two transfering from other schools.

The transferees are Warren Fishburn from Tularcitos, who will teach Spanish, and Nick Zanides from Carmel High School, who will join the language arts team.

The language arts department will have three other teachers new to Middle School.

Mrs. Anita Hellie, a graduate of Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn., will join the school following four years of experience in developmental and remedial reading and junior high English in Kenyon, Minn.

Also new in the language arts department will be Mrs. Suzanne McGuane, an English major from Alvernia College in Reading, Pa. She has had a semester's experience as a sixth grade teacher in Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Also joining the department will be Mrs. Kit Stebbins, who has been a fifth and sixth grade teacher for the past four years. She received both her B.A. and M.A. from the University of Redlands.

Mrs. Brenda Guy will be a new home economics teacher. A graduate of the University of Kansas, she comes from Lawrence, Kan., where she taught home economics at Central Junior High School for the past two years.

Teaching Spanish will be Gail Sherman, an intern teacher from the University of California, who is a one-year replacement for John Waldron, who is on sabbatical leave. She received her B.A. from San Jose State College this year, and has done extra work in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Mrs. Patricia Lee, who substituted several times last year at Middle School, will be returning in Spetember as a regular teacher in the girls' physical education department. She received her teaching credential from California State College at Hayward, and was a student teacher in Fremont before coming here.

The counseling department at Middle School will be given a lift with the return of Jay Criddle from sabbatical leave and the assignment of Mrs. Rod Dresser, who taught English last year, to work with him.

Middle School principal Orville C. Rogers said that once again volunteer assistance from parents can be used in almost every area, particularly in the library. Anyone interested in helping at the school should contact him at the Middle School office.

Carmel wins pedestrian safety award

The cities of Carmel, Monterey and Pacific Grove last week received American Automobile Association awards for "their fine programs and overall effort" in the 1970 pedestrian safety inventory program. The program is a measure of effectiveness directed toward pedestrian safety.

The program measures the city's casualty record, maintenance and use of accident records, legislation for enforcement, traffic engineering, traffic safety organization, school traffic safety and publication of the information for educational purposes.

Carmel's Mayor Barney Laiolo and Police Chief Clyde Klaumann received a "Special Citation for Casualty Record" award, presented by Lyle K. Engeldinger of the California State Automobile Association which sponsors the program in the 45 counties of northern and central California and the state of Nevada.

Mayor Al Madden and Police Chief Harold Benadom accepted the "Pedestrian Safety Citation" award for Monterey for its achievement of zero pedestrian casualties for 1969. In presenting this award, Engeldinger noted that this is the sixth consecutive year that Monterey has maintained a zero pedestrian casualty record.

Pacific Grove's Mayor Earl Grafton received Pacific Grove's "Pedestrian Safety Citation" award also for zero pedestrian casualties during 1969.

During the presentation of all three awards, Engeldinger attributed these excellent records to the fine work of each member of the cities' staff, emphasizing the work of local law enforcement which has the critical day to day responsibility for carrying out the traffic safety program. He further emphasized that the real key to pedestrian safety is the implementation of meaningful safety programs, by such safety conscientious cities as Carmel, Monterey and Pacific Grove.

These cities, competing with other cities of comparable population, took part in national contests to earn the awards. In all, 2,083 cities in 27 states participated in this year's American Automobile Association pedestrian safety inventory program.

Anita Pankratz weds

Anita Pankratz of Carmel and James Lynn of Los Gatos were married Saturday beneath the towering trees of the church of Saint Francis of the Redwoods in Big Sur.

The bride's father, Herman E. Pankratz of Sacramento, gave her in marriage. She was attended by her sisters, Karen Pankratz of Carmel and Mrs. Nanette Knuf of Reno, Nev. Best man was Harry Holt of Pacific Grove.

The ceremony took place in the outdoor part of the church, with guests seated on falled redwood trees which have been hacked into benches. Anita's wedding costume was chosen to suit the rustic setting.

She wore a street-length white wool knit, A-line sleeveless dress with a cowl neckline, trimmed with white leather. She wore white knee-length boots, and for head covering, white leather flowers.

Other family members present were Anita's sister Nanette's husband Leo Knuf, their five children, and numerous aunts, uncles and cousins.

A reception at La Playa Hotel followed the ceremony.

Anita has been administrative secretary at City Hall where her sister Karen also works.

After honeymooning in New Orleans and Memphis, Tenn., the couple plan to live in the Santa Cruz mountains. Jim will continue his work toward his master's degree in psychology at San Jose State College next month.

If you just bought this year's VW sedan, congratulations.

Next year nobody will know you're not driving next year's VW sedan.

Because next year's beetle will look like this year's beetle. (What else?) And every other beetle we've ever made.

So it will be just as hard to tell a 20-year-old VW from a brand new VW.

Buying a car that doesn't go out of style has still another benefit: you don't take a beating when you sell it.

A VW depreciates very slowly.

But even though next year's Volkswagen won't be different, it will be different.

We've made some nice improvements. As usual. (Over 2200 since 1949.)

So in next year's VW you can look forward to a new ——— and a bigger ———— and a different—

Well, you wouldn't want us to give away all our little secrets, would you?

What kind of sneaky preview would that be?

According to Coleman, beverage service will be in effect daily until 8 p.m. with bar cart service on the golf course weekends. River School to have two new teachers

Fred A. Pitts, the new principal of River School, will have two new teachers on his staff this fall.

Teaching the fourth grade will be Raymon A. Wilson, who holds a master's degree from the United States International University in San Diego. He was a student teacher at the third, fourth and fifth grade levels in San Diego last year.

Coming in to teach the first grade is Lee Ann Schweitzer, a graduate of Pennsylvania State University. Miss Schweitzer lives in Monterey.

NOTICE

The next regular City Council meeting has been rescheduled from Sept. 9 to Sept. 10 because Admission Day falls Sept. 9.

The holiday is the second in the week, following Labor Day Sept. 7.

Homes sought for foreign students

The Citizens' Committee for International Students is appealing to Carmel and other Monterey Peninsula families to provide school-year homes for students now arriving from Hong Kong, Iran, Lebanon, Pakistan and Thailand for the fall term at Monterey Peninsula College which has no dormitories.

Some of these young people wish to earn their room and board by doing gardening, housework or babysitting. Others prefer and are able to pay, in order to devote more time to studies. Others like a room and kitchen privileges.

While a number of those on student visas are returning for a second year at MPC, eight young men and four girls will be in this country for the first time. Mrs. Edna Rankin McKinnon of Hacienda Carmel, chairman of the Committee, feels that living with a local family is important to these students in learning American customs and ways of living.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. R. Panholzer at 624-5701. Later this month, Foreign Student Advisor Rosabelle Hsmann will be in her MPC office to discuss foreign student housing with interested residents.

WHAT HAPPENS in a small Southern town when the white residents wake up one morning to find all the blacks have disappeared? This improbability sets the stage for "Day of Absence," a whiteface farce presented by the black acting troupe, Grass Roots Experience, August 21 at Sunset Auditorium.

Entries chosen for film makers festival

A screening committee including three Carmel judges Sunday completed selection of motion pictures to be shown at the Monterey Independent Film-Makers Festival.

Richard Hilton, Eldon Dedini and Sam Harrison of Carmel joined the 20-man committee in choosing 47 films from among 170 entries in the third annual film bash.

The committee met last night to prepare the festival screening schedule.

Hilton teaches motion picture production and English at Carmel High School, Dedini draws cartoons for the New Yorker and other publications, and Harrison has made films with Frohman Productions of Monterey and will teach a film class this year at Monterey Peninsula College.

Some of the films selected are so long that a fifth showing may be required Saturday afternoon, according to screening committee member, Ron Bostwick.

As now scheduled the films will be shown August 26-29 at 8 p.m. in the Monterey Peninsula College Little Theater.

Winning films will be shown at an awards program August 30 at 8 p.m. at the Sunset Auditorium in Carmel.

Tickets at $1 for each of the first four showings and at $1.50 for the awards showing are available at the college's community services office and Sunset Center, respectively.

If needed, the extra Saturday show will be in the afternoon at the auditorium.

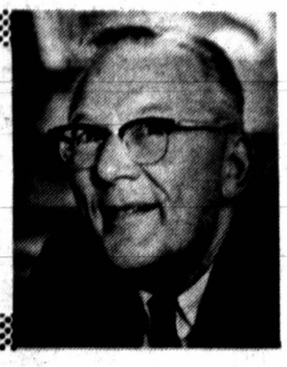
S&H GREEN STAMPS

the conscience of Carmel



BY GUNNAR NORBERG

Because Carmel so far has no separate daily of its own, local newspaper readers have to depend on the Monterey daily which reaches many of them, for day-to-day coverage of events affecting Carmel. Sometimes that daily's coverage is fairly good; sometimes it is indifferent; sometimes, haphazard; sometimes, poor.

While I have certain qualifications for judging editorial work (having edited both newspapers and nationally circulated magazines) there are times when no special qualifications are needed to note certain obvious omissions in day-to-day reporting of Carmel-related events.

A recent example of this sort of omission in coverage of news of much concern to many Carmelites was the non-reporting of an important argument in the public hearing (August 4th) held by the county board of supervisors in the courthouse at Salinas before the supervisors decided whether or not to rezone, or reclassify, some 45 acres near the entrance to the Carmel Valley. This hearing as many of you know, was held to determine if as many as six homes per acre should be allowed on land long zoned for no more than one home per acre.

When the long public hearing ended late in the afternoon of August 4th, the supervisors decided unanimously to refuse to reclassify the 45 acres (on both sides of Val Verde road) even though the county planning commission had unanimously asked them to do so. Thus the long-established one-dwelling-unit-per-acre zoning still is in effect, at least for the present, while the supervisors directed the county planning commission to give new study to any possible future rezoning or reclassification in the entire lower flood-plain area of the Carmel River.

And this brings us back to that omission in the Monterey daily's reporting of this August 4th public hearing before the supervisors, for there was no mention at all of the fact that considerable hearing time had been devoted to a description of past, and possible future, flood hazards in the Carmel River flood plain. The discussion of flood perils could, in fact, have had an important, even if not a deciding, effect upon the decision by the supervisors to leave present zoning and classification as they have long stood. Certainly, at the very least, it deserved to be mentioned.

Actually the potentiality of flood hazards in the lower flood plain of the Carmel River should have engaged the serious attention of the couty board for many, many years. If its attention had been so engaged, much of the rezoning done there in the past ten of fifteen years probably would not have been done at all. Particularly should this have been true in the past three years when condominium zoning near the lower Carmel River for up to 10 dwelling units per acre was surprisingly authorized, without first making any required change in the long-standing county master plan for the area, or even holding any public hearing to test sentiment favoring or opposing such a change.

Carmel River flood-plain discussion at that August 4th hearing before the supervisors in Salinas was based mainly on data and recommendations contained in an impartial study (made at the request of those supervisors) prepared by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and issued in book form in May, 1967.

Data in the Corps of Engineers study concerned floods which had occurred in the past, the likelihood of future floods along with their probably magnitudes and the course of action which could be followed to minimize their adverse effect upon persons and property.

Analysts of floods describe floods by their likely frequency and size. For example, the 1958 Carmel River flood, which inundated the only subdivision then existing in the area (Mission Fields), is described in the Corps of Engineers study as one of the lesser ones which could occur—the kind which would be likely to happen every 20 years or so. Another flood variety—the every-50-years-or-so kind—or a more devasting kind—is believed to have occurred in 1911. Still another, and worse, type is the every-hundred-years sort which is thought to have occurred, or been exceeded, back in 1862, when much of the Carmel Valley was flooded. However, it is a larger flood than any of these, for which the Corps of Engineers believes any flood-prone area—such as the Carmel River basin—should be prepared. This is what, in flood analysts jargon, is called a Standard Project Flood, which is defined as "an extraordinary, but statistically probably, large flood" (about three times the size of the 1958 flood).

At several points in the Corps of Engineers study, the point is made that there is "no comprehensive flood control project" for the Carmel River basin. That was true in 1967 when the study was completed, and it is still true today. Meanwhile the Engineers' study ventured the view that "the laws of probability and past experience indicate that the greatest possible flood may not yet have occurred."

And just what effect should all this flood prognosis have upon requests such as the August 4th proposal to reclassify those 45 acres in the lower Carmel Valley from one-dwelling-unit-per-acre to as many as six homesites per acre?

Just the effect that it did have that day: A refusal by the county board of supervisors to allow for the kind of increase in population, and for the sacrifice in rural area, which reclassification, and eventual rezoning, would have allowed.

The county supervisors heard, at that August 4th public hearing, two trenchant quotations from the Corps of Engineers study, which could have had a decisive bearing on their eventual determination to 'hold the line' against the then proposed small-lot reclassification and rezoning.

In one quotation, the Engineers study urged that "agricultural, recreational, or similar zoning regulations" be applied in the Carmel River flood plain, instead of expanding either commercial or residential uses there. In the other quotation, the study deplored what had already happened up to 1967, in these words:

"Monterey County has no comprehensive flood-plain zoning plan...and many examples of improvements, the location of which, shows impudent disregard of nature's capriciousness..."

Certainly it is time, and past time, for the county to begin to prepare, and to implement, an appropriate flood-plain zoning plan at least for the lower Carmel River basin, and meanwhile to halt—as it did once, August 4th—proposals for further small-lot subdivision activity in the area.

Mrs. Bleisner joins Carmelo

With its enrollment expected to increase again this year, Carmelo School is adding a half-time teacher to help in the Alpha Unit. Mrs. Alys Bliesner, a graduate of San Francisco State College, will augment the regular Alpha team during the mornings.

Principal Phil Smith said the unit will also have two teacher aides "to give us greater flexibility and enable us to maintain the quality of our program."

All of last year's teachers are returning to Carmelo, and the Alpha and Beta teams will remain the same.

VISION CARE

BY DR. R.E. MARLIN
(consulting optometrist)

Glasses Relieve These Kind of Headaches

Contrary to general belief, eyestrain does not always cause a direct pain in the eye, but frequently manifests itself in the form of an ache or pain in other parts of the head.

Frontal or Temporal Headaches—pains in the forehead or just above the ear. Such pains may be completely relieved and prevented by wearing the proper kind of glasses.

Occipital Headaches—pains in the lower part of the back of the head—generally due to prolonged accomodative strain of the eyes.

Eyeball Headaches—pains in the eye are almost wholly due to defects of vision and can be promptly relieved by wearing the proper prescription glasses.

No medicine of any kind will cure headaches caused by eyestrain. The only remedy is to relieve the strain. If you are one of the thousands who suffer from "eye headaches," consult your optometrist.

EARTHQUAKE TALK

When Monterey Mayor Al Madden was unable to keep his speaking engagement before the Carmel High Twelve Club Monday, Dr. Robert Andrews of the Department of Oceanography at the Naval Postgraduate School stepped into the breach with a timely discussion of earthquakes.

He said that the local Aug. 3 tremblor, originating in a submarine canyon about 12 miles north of Monterey Harbor was the first disturbance occurring in that area since 1922. The recent quake, showing a Richter scale reading of 5, was less severe than its predecessor, which had a magnitude of 6.1.

Dr. Andrews drew attention to other earth faults in this area, including the best known, the San Andreas which runs through Hollister, another running parallel to Point Sur and ending at Carmel Canyon in Carmel Bay, the Carmel Valley fault which follows that valley's river, and the Tularcitos fault.

Monterey County Sheriff Davenport will speak at next Monday's meeting. His subject will be the operation of his department's rescue unit. Carmel Police Chief Clyde Klaumann will introduce him.

At the club's last August lunch meeting, representatives of Monterey Peninsula College organizations, Young Americans for Freedom and the Intercollegiate Scholastic Institute will present programs under the direction of Tom Smaake.

High Twelve has one of the highest attendance records of any service club on the Monterey Peninsula. Monday noon luncheon meetings at La Playa Hotel are supplemented with other activities such as golf and shuffleboard.

THE PHONE BOOTH

It's getting harder all the time to find an isolated hide-away, but now you can still get away from it all, yet keep in touch with the rest of the world. Last year the Bell System added a dozen new places to its overseas communications network including the Admiralty, Gilbert and Chatham Islands in the South Pacific.

In 1927, the year Lindbergh flew solo across the Atlantic, overseas communications consisted of a single radio-telephone circuit between New York City and London. Today you can reach 97% of the world's telephones in more than 200 countries and territories.

Registration for the November 3 general election closes September 10. If you'll be 21 years old by election day or are new in the community, you must register to be eligible to vote.

A new law makes it unnecessary for voters who've moved within a county to re-register. Such voters can now notify the County Clerk or Registrar of Voters by mail of their change of address and he will provide the necessary forms to be filled out. (Notices must be postmarked no later than Sept. 10.) You'll also be able to get these forms at our Business Office at 404 Franklin Street in Monterey where we will again be providing voter registration facilities for your convenience.

M.I.F.S. alumni association formed

The formation of a Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies alumni association was accomplished last week at the Carmel home of Ambassador Fulton Freeman, president of the school.

The following officers were elected: Mitko Nedeff of Carmel Valley, president; Robert Burch of Pebble Beach, vice president; Mrs. Marina York of Monterey, secretary-treasurer.

The officers plan to meet in the near future to discuss permanent form for the organization.

The organizational meeting was held at Freeman's home following several informal preliminary gatherings of selected alumni, faculty, staff and trustees.

"The idea for an alumni association came voluntarily from graduates and former students, and was welcomed enthusiastically by staff, faculty and trustees," said Freeman.

"The association not only will serve as a social organization but in addition will have a serious purpose. Graduates and former students can gain much from a sharing of their professional experiences and from programs of continuing education, making use of the institute's faculty and facilities."

The institute opened in the summer of 1955 with 13 students and reached an enrollment of 403 this summer.

Nearly 1,100 alumni are eligible to become members of the association which includes all former students as well as graduates.

Distinguished visitor discusses Aussie-American relations

By JUDITH A. EISNER

Politicians and government officials on visits to foreign countries are usually on their "best behavior." They take "good will tours" in the hopes of bettering diplomatic relationships between nations.

Rarely do we hear about a visiting dignitary whose purpose in making a trip to another country is to criticize that country's policies. But such was the case of the recent visit to Carmel of Dr. James Cairns, a member of the Australian Parliament and of the international organization, SANE.

Dr. Cairns' visit to the U.S. was sponsored by SANE, a peace-oriented organization that has been active for more than 20 years.

SANE boasts an international membership and such notables as Pablo Casals, Martin Buber, Gunnar Myrdahl and Albert Schweitzer are among its founders. Currently, it devotes much of its energy to fighting the ABM missile system in Washington and working against military spending and for domestic spending.

SANE has been sponsoring a series of town meetings throughout the country for elected officials to address their constituents in a public forum on the problems of their community. It is SANE's objective to show that money needed for community betterment projects is available—but tied up in the military budget.

The SANE Lecture Tours sponsor speakers from many countries abroad; it brings these speakers to the United States to address diverse audiences—Republican, Democratic, non-partisan, and peace groups.

Dr. Cairns' tour, in addition to speaking about the war in Vietnam and the Australian-American relationship, supported local peace candidates for the November elections. On the last leg of his tour he stopped at Carmel where he was the houseguest of the Peter Besags of Carmel Highlands and at whose home he consented to this interview.

As Americans, we know Australia as that seventh continent, an island, populated largely by kangaroos, koala bears, Bushmen and a strange breed of cowboy who fussily demands that he be called a 'cattleman.' We think of them as a half-British, hard-drinking, pioneering, drought-defying, slightly mad bunch of blokes.

We do not tend to think of Australia as a country whose destiny is irrevocably tied to our own, whose fate is intimately linked with decisions of the United States.

James Cairns is a native Australian, born there in 1914. In 1939 he was state broadjump and decathlon champion, and he retains much of his athlete's stature and bearing. He served in the Australian Army in Indonesia, then completed a Ph.D. in political history at the University of Melbourne. In 1951 he was the recipient of a fellowship to Oxford, and in 1955 was elected, for the first time, to the Australian Parliament.

His official title is Shadow Minister for Trade, which makes him the third most important man in the Labour Party. In Australianese, the "Shadow Party" is the minority party.

Dr. Cairns, who is one of the two Ph.D.'S IN Parliament (both in the Labour Party), has been re-elected continuously from 1955 through the 1969 elections. And, interestingly, in a predominantly conservative country with a majority of people favoring a strong military position, Dr. Cairns runs on a platform of immediate withdrawal of Australian troops from Vietnam. He favors withdrawal of all troops, but admits he would be satisfied for the moment if the Aussies came home now.

His knowledge of the Vietnam situation is deep and broad. His book, The Eagle and The Lotus, is a history of intervention in Vietnam since 1847. He has written numerous articles on Vietnam for various magazines and is the author of the Encyclopedia Britanica's article on Australia. He believes that there is an urgent need for Australians who don't agree with U.S. policy to come here to speak and for important Americans who are against the war, such as Senators Fulbright, Hatfield, McGovern and McCarthy to go to Australia to speak. This is his second lecture tour for SANE.

"The problem," he says, "is that the majority of Australians think only 'ratbags' in America oppose the war in Vietnam." A 'ratbag,' he tries to explain, is Aussie slang for a person who is irresponsible, unnoticed, unimportant and long-winded.

"I think it matters a great deal to Australians who is in your Congress. I believe it's of great importance for the peace candidates to have a victory in November. If not, we're in for a great deal of trouble. I'm here to support peace candidates and to tell Americans that more than half the Australians stand for what your peace candidates stand for."

To understand why American politics is of such vital importance to Australia, it is necessary to understand a little of Australian history, including the prejudices that are bound up into it.

Until the 19th century, non-English people were rare in

DR. JAMES CAIRNS

Australia. Even migrants from Continental Europe were few and Australian society was as nearly 100 percent Anglo-Saxon as could be. A number of Greeks and Italians emigrated to Australia where they established themselves as vegetable vendors; they were "at the bottom of the social order."

In 1851 gold was discovered on the continent and between 40 and 45,000 Chinese emigrated. Another 60,000 followed hard at their heels. Dr. Cairns concedes that the Chinese are the only non-United Kingdom peoples to have influenced Australian history and development.

Unfortunately, the goldfields were soon played out and that left somewhere in the neighborhood of 100 thousand Chinese out of work. The treatment they received at the hands of the Australians was brutal; if they were not hanged they were simply driven to the wharves and forced to ship out of the country.

This, according to Dr. Cairns, has come down through generations of Australians as an inherited fear of a "yellow peril" poised ever-menacingly over Australia; to the "White Australia Policy" that discourages and makes all but impossible emigration by anyone but Caucasians; and to conservative foreign and defense policies.

One would think that Australia's experience with 100 thousand unemployed Chinese would have created this fear of a Chinese "yellow peril." But the Aussie does not fear China. "It's difficult for Australia to fear the Chinese and sell them over $200 million worth of wheat a year!" scoffs Dr. Cairns. "We are afraid of Japan and of Asian Communism.

"Leaning toward a powerful friend for protection is a traditional way of solving our problem—fear of Asia. Once, we looked to Britain for protection. Then, after we became independent, we joined our destiny with the United States. We now look to you to stand between us and the "yellow peril." We have 8,500 Australian troops in Vietnam and we look upon them as an insurance policy with low premium rates...Also, we try to keep these boys out of combat as much as possible."

In other words, the presence of 8,500 Aussie troops in Vietnam guarantees that the United States will come to Australia's aid should they require it.

"We're in Vietnam because of our relationship with the United States, not because we fear the Vietnamese or anything else.

"We've always been prepared to help the big power—whoever he was. We sent troops to the Sudan, to the Boer War, World War II Korea, Malaysia and now to Vietnam. We've sent our troops farther from our own shores than any other nation...and that's part of a philosophy that says, 'It's better to fight them there than here.' "

The average Australian, according to Dr. Cairns, whose constituency is one of the largest districts in Melbourne, has been less involved with the Vietnam war than have Americans. In 1966 opposition to the war lost the Labour Party 10 seats in Parliament; however, support for withdrawal is growing steadily as shown by public opinion polls, and now 53 percent of the people support withdrawal. In the 1969 elections, the Labour Party won back the lost 10 seats plus an additional seven seats.

"Australians," says Dr. Cairns, "are getting sick of the Vietnam war in spite of their Asia-protection syndrome. They'd like the U.S. to make the decision to withdraw before we make it on our own."

Australia's view of the United States is pretty unrealistic on some grounds, says Dr. Cairns. "It's a combination of Hollywood, prohibition, Al Capone and Uncle Tom's Cabin." Yet Australian anti-American feelings are still in the minority, although that minority hits hard.

"Anti-American sentiment in Australia sees the United States as the imperialist force in the modern world—as an interesting amalgam of free enterprise and religion. They see the U.S. in the same light as they saw Great Britain before World War II, the way the British were in India or the French in Indochina...as having a "correct and benevolent" attitude toward the underdeveloped countries.

"But," adds Dr. Cairns, "Britain and France were less violent than the United States in their imperialist days. There was only one Black Hole of Calcutta for the British in India; there have been many for the U.S. in Vietnam."

Dr. Cairns supports peace candidates in this country for selfish as well as altruistic reasons, because Australia's destiny is so dependent upon ours.

"The end of the war is necessary because the repression at home is getting worse," he says speaking of America. "The Australians are very aware of the violence in America. Kent State was all over our newspapers. Your government has got to stop doing what people object to or has to stop people from objecting..."

He adds an interesting sidelight: "The Australian attitude toward Vietnam is purely racial," he says. "We wouldn't condone doing to a white people what is being done to yellow people."

Dr. Cairns feels that President Nixon will adopt the Hatfield-McGovern position on the war in time for the 1972 elections...for purely political expediency. "Does Mr. Nixon ever do anything that's not for political expediency?" he asks with a wry grin.

"I'm assuming Nixon will continue to withdraw troops right up until the next election just to give the impression of withdrawal. But he'll ultimately leave 150,000 troops in Saigon to guarantee the support of the government."

While admitting that the average Australian is very poorly informed about U.S. internal problems, Dr. Cairns does point out the Aussie attitude toward the president.

"He's the American president we've least noticed since Lincoln," he says. "He hasn't gone over in Australia. We know more about Agnew than about Nixon. Actually, the propaganda against Nixon is better known than he is. I've never known such anti-American-president feelings in Australia as with Mr. Nixon.

Dr. Cairns' tour has taken him to such cities as Seattle, Portland, Denver, Dallas, Houston, Ft. Worth, Albuquerque, San Francisco and Monterey. He reports that he has been warmly received, even in "unlikely" places for preaching peace.

"The rules for traveling politicians are not to criticize one's own government, one's host government, and not to say anything meaningful at all. That simply isn't valid if we continue to hope for true communication between men and for meaningful governments to lead them."

Petpourri

BY JUDITH EISNER

Anyone who thinks cats lack intelligence ought to eavesdrop anyplace three or more cat owners congregate and where catfood arises as a topic of discussion. The petfood section of a supermarket is a good spot.

Lady 1 and Lady 2 are selecting catfoods from the varied display. Lady 1 chooses three varieties of Brand A. Lady 2 selects three different varieties of Brand B. She notices Lady 1.

"Does your cat each that?" she queries, eyebrows raised. The items in question, by the way, are exactly the same price and quality as the brand she selects.

"Why, yes," replies Lady 1. "My cat only eats the Chicken a la King and Tuna and Liver." She glances into her neighbor's shopping cart. "She never touches that kind."

In the meantime, Lady 3 is busy at the meat counter.

"Would you mind grinding a half pound of veal in with this liver, please...and do you have any lamb kidneys today?" she purrs to the patient meat man. "And I'd like about a half pound of lungs, wrapped in two packages."

She is not purchasing the ingredients for some esoteric pate, but for her cat's dinner.

The most interesting thing about these three cat lovers' shopping expeditions is that their respective cats may scorn all the food they've selected!

Give a dog a moderately palatable dish of meat and kibble and he'll eat with gusto, shove the dish around looking for more and come back the next day for another dish of the identical stuff. Feed Puss the costliest cuts of meat, or the finest canned food and there's always the chance that he'll scratch imaginary dirt over it, turn his back and hint that you really know nothing about feeding cats.

Yet the only logical answer to this cat feeding dilemma is that we've created this generation of feline Duncan Hineses.

Once upon a time, cats, like dogs, were hunters. They ate whatever they were skillful enough to catch and they didn't dream of turning up their noses. Imagine a prehistoric cat saying, "What? Mice again???"

The cat books, over the years, have done much to further the cat's willing climb to gastronomic heights. Perhaps because the original cat fanciers were the prototypes of little old ladies, the cat's dinner had to be a much-fussed-about thing. After all, one couldn't just feed poor darling Puddy Tat any old thing!

Says a charming little-old-ladyish cat book we have: "...cats simply must not have: ham, bacon, corned beef, sausages, bread, potatoes, cake, pie, spaghetti, macaroni, noodles, baked beans, lima beans, turnips, parsnips, the cabbage family (including sauerkraut and excepting broccoli), corn, alligator pears, bananas, breakfast foods, porridge, coffee, tea, cocoa, cocktails, candy, popcorn, peanuts, cheese...or tinned catfood."

She then goes on to give a scrumptious recipe for a stew of boiled lungs, fish, tomato juice and dog kibble—called Pate Oscar!

Now, 25 years is a long time, especially in terms of petfood manufacture. What was available then probably was as bad as various writers make it out to be. But modern writers continue to cling to their cherished recipes—did you ever smell stewing lungs, tripe and kidney?— in their die-hard beliefs that nothing is fit food for a cat but these special, time-consuming concoctions.

We also cannot but wonder where our writer learned that broccoli was acceptable food for a cat...or tomato juice...and what made her admonish so strongly against cheeses? Practical experience? Personal aversion? The point we are trying to make it that too many cat books take adamant stands against many foods that, in moderation, can do your cat no harm and some which can do him much good.

Unless you and your cat both appreciate your culinary efforts on his behalf, the less fuss about his dinner, the better. You needn't cook up these goopy stews—unless Cat has trained you to the point where he refuses anything else.

Top-quality canned catfood (and without mentioning brands, top-quality is almost always top-priced), should be your cat's dietary staple. Since he'll no doubt refuse the same variety more than once a week, vary his menu. Provide dry food for nutrition, nibbling and tooth-cleaning—and clean water. Beyond that, let the cat experiment all he wants!

If he'll eat raw kidneys and heart and liver, that's fine food, as long as it doesn't upset his digestion. You may have to cook it—and he may not eat it. And remember, with today's prices, even kidney and heart costs about 60 cents a pound; good tinned catfood runs about 45 cents. Rember, too, that a diet of only meat, whether it be organs or beef or both, is not a complete, balanced diet. There's where the canned food, with all its cereal and vegetable content is the better choice.

Let your cat nibble on just about anything within reason that strikes his fancy. One noted cat book author admits rather sheepishly that his cats adore chili! Our cats are mad about cooked corn! And cottage cheese (a very worthwhile food, by the way). A few string beans, a nip of potato, a couple of corn flakes aren't going to hurt him. Neither will be leftover meats from your own dinner, providing they're not too fatty or spicy. We have yet to meet a cat who would willingly gorge himself on something "taboo" to make himself ill.

And one more thing: no healthy cat ever voluntarily starved himself to death. He's just being plain old spoiled when he refuses good, fresh catfood!

Art auction at PG Art Center

An art auction sponsored by the Pacific Grove Women's Guild will take place this weekend at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

The theme of the event—called "El Mercado Artistico"—is Spanish, with wine and other refreshments being served by ladies wearing festive Spanish attire.

Many fine art works as well as service items such as boat rides, vacation hideaways and a complete dinner for a family of six at the Pizza Pub have been donated to the block, according to an auction organizer, Beth Kirschen.

Jon Sabater, dress designer from the Way Out House, will also contribute his talents to the event.

Items will be previewed Saturday at 4 p.m. and will be placed for bids Sunday at 3 p.m.

In other areas, the Art Center is displaying watercolors by Albert E. Wascher in the Little Gallery and works by California black artists in Gallery I in conjunction with Monterey Bicentennial Afro-American Week. Many of these works are on sale.

EDWARDS ARMY DISEMBARKS

The army disembarked at the Carmel home of Richard and Genevieve Edwards last week in the persons of sons Dana, a private first class, home on two-week leave from Fort Riley, Kansas, and Richard II, a sergeant returned home from Vietnam with seven ribbons, including a purple heart.

Dick Edwards, the first, is a retired army man who now works for the post office in Monterey. Genevieve is organizing the art fair in conjunction with the Carmel Mission Basilica's seventh annual fiesta.

When the family lived in Carmel 10 years ago, Edwards senior studied Spanish at the Army Language School (now the Defense Language Institute) and both boys attended Carmel Mission School.

George Abend exhibit opens in Big Sur

An exhibition of recent paintings by George Abend opens Saturday at the Coast Gallery, Big Sur.

Abend "dropped out" of the art scene when leaving New York in 1965, and has been living in Big Sur for the past 14 months.

He may also show some earlier paintings outside. "These new works," he explained, "are a transition apparently related to my leaving the city and living here. In the country I've found a new struggle to meet myself and reinforce my oneness. Showing some of the earlier work may set it off well."

Except for showing single works in Los Angeles while teaching at California State College at Los Angeles and in a travelling exhibition, he has not shown in California since he left the Bay Area for New York in the fall of 1961. Thus even the earlier paintings he may install in the environs of the gallery as an introduction to the show have never been exhibited in California.

When discussing his recent work he made it clear that "...even though the forms around me often enter into my image, this is no portrayal of a visual environment...rather a flowing from the artist's imagination expressing inner feelings in visual music...perhaps the sound of psychic thought and emotion."

Abend has exhibited in galleries and museums in Europe and Mexico as well as this country. Included in these are the San Francisco Museum of Art and the Legion of Honor Museum in San Francisco, the Museum of Modern Art and the Gallerie de France in Paris, the Corcoran Art Museum in Washington, D.C. and the Guggenheim and Whitney Museums in New York. He was represented by the Howard Wise Gallery in New York City.

The show will run through September 11.

Correction

In last week's Pine Cone, artist Peter Plamandon was identified as a Carmel artist who won "best of show" honors at the Monterey Fair Art Show. Mr. Plamandon now resides in Pacific Grove.

Entries invited for Mission Handicraft Fair

Carmel area artists—both amateur and professional—have been invited to sell their work at a Handicraft Fair September 27 as part of Carmel Mission Basilica's seventh annual fiesta.

Space is provided in the basilica's inner courtyard for the erection of booths in return for contribution to the festival of 10 percent of sales.

Local art instructor Charles Lee has already applied for entry as well as members of his and artist Keith Lindberg's classes, according to Mrs. Genevieve Edwards, fair organizer.

Further information is available at 624-9676.

Mrs. Edwards described the fair as a "Neighborhood thing" with entries from "professionals, amateurs and children" expected.

The event is patterned on the annual outdoor art festival at the Santa Barbara mission, she said. The festival had 180 entries this year.

Mrs. Edwards lived in Santa Barbara until moving to Carmel in January this year. She is a member of the Santa Barbara Art Association.

The Carmel mission festival, of which the art fair is part, features a chicken barbecue. It is open from noon to 5 p.m. September 27 at the mission grounds.

"LOOKOUT POINT" is title of this 16-inch high metal sculpture by Douglas Purdy. The well-known artist's work is now on display at the new Matrix II Gallery in the upper level, Su Vecino Court on Dolores St. (MacDougall King photo).

New Matrix II gallery shows metal sculpture

Douglas Purdy metal sculptures of Monterey Peninsula scenes are now being offered in Carmel at the new Matrix II Gallery.

Purdy's work, available the past two years in Monterey at the Matrix I on Fisherman's Wharf, reflects a life spent close to art and nature.

Born in New York of an artistic family that settled in Los Altos Hills, Purdy grew up surrounded by art and began to display a talent for it at an early age.

During high school he developed an interest in working with metal and trained as a jeweler. Subsequent artistic development was primarily the result of self-tutoring.

Purdy, quiet and modest by nature, prefers observing fishermen and gulls to joining in the social whirl. His keen eyesight enables him to appreciate much that is lost to many people.

"His meticulous care in creating beautifully designed and artistically balanced sculptures—masterpieces of imagination—has made a good name for Douglas Purdy in the art world," wrote one observer. "His fine worksmanship is a determined effort to see that his sculptures are passed down from father to son as the collectors' items they are."

Matrix II, located in Su Vecino Court, is run by English-born Emily Heckman.

An art collector herself, Miss Heckman believes art should be available at prices within the reach of more people than is customary.

"Nothing's more enjoyable than seeing a young couple purchase their first art object," said Miss Heckman shortly after the Matrix opening.

"If you start collecting at a young age you can afford the 'waiting period' for an artist to reach a reasonable amount of fame," she said.

Matrix II also displays batiks by Sakura of Marina and boating and tree watercolors by N. Elliott Pisor of Carmel Valley and Shirley Sullivan of Pacific Grove.

Garth mosaic mural at Carmel Center

THIRTY-THREE FOOT MOSAIC MURAL depicting scenes of the founding of Carmel decorates wall near Safeway market in Carmel Center, Highway One and Rio Road. The giant mosaic was done by San Francisco artist John Garth.

Focal point of the new Carmel Center located at Highway One and Rio Road is the new giant 33-foot mosaic mural by well-known San Francisco Bay Area artist John Garth.

The multi-talented Garth has been one of the leading Bay Area artists for more than 35 years. He established a reputation in oil portraits, charcoals, magazine color cover sketches and murals, and has concentrated in recent years on historical mosaic murals.

His colorful mural here near Safeway's new store depicts the story of Carmel. It focuses on the basilica of the Carmel Mission and the Padres and also pictures the Indians selling fish, Seal Rock, Old Ghost Tree and Midway Rock.

To effect the design, skilled mechanics from Coast Tile Co. in Salinas utilized a combination of glass mosaic and unglazed ceramic mosaic tile. Principal use was made of 2" x 2" unglazed ceramic mosaic tile manufactured in Corona, Calif., by the West Coast Division of the Mosaic Tile Company.

In addition to the colorful Carmel Center mural, Garth has completed outstanding historical mosaic murals such as the "History of El Camino Real" at the new Safeway store in Millbrae, Calif., the "Columbus Discovery" murals for Columbus Savings & Loan Assn., the Benjamin Franklin murals for Franklyn Savings & Loan Assn., and the Golden Gate murals for Safeway's Marina store in San Francisco.

He also designed and executed murals for Publix Super Markets in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., picturing a colorful caravan bringing good things to eat and drink from the end of the earth to please and serve Miss Florida and all the fruit and flowers of the State of Florida surrounding the stately young goddess while the early Spanish explorers and Seminole Indians stand in attendance.

Garth, chairman for Painting & Sculpture, San Francisco Art Commission, is president of the Society of Western Artists, which boasts a coast-wide membership of more than 2,000 artists.

He is a full-professional member, National Society of Mural Painters; was art critic for San Francisco's famous "Argonaut" weekly for 15 years; won First Art Award, California State Fair. He is art director, San Francisco Press Club; art member, San Francisco Rotary Club; past president, San Francisco Architectural Club; admissions counsellor, Huntington Hartford Fine Arts Foundation, and member of the Foundation's National Council, New York.

Garth is a Fellow, Royal Society of Art, London; member of the Board of Directors, National Council of American Artist Societies, New York; and American Institute of Fine Arts. He was awarded the National Gold Medal of Honor for Distinguished Service to American Artists, Professional League; and he is listed in "Who's Who in American Art" and "Who's Who in the West."

"SOIREE" FRIDAY

The Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies French Department hosts "La Soiree Francaise" Friday, 7-9 p.m., in the Samuel F.B. Morse Building auditorium, 440 Van Buren Street, Monterey.

the business scene in Carmel

By JAMES PETER COST
President, Carmel Business Assn.

As I was saying last week, Carmel is blessed with a parking problem. The problem is not peculiar to Carmel alone but we have unique and conflicting objectives that I think may not compound the problem in other cities. The shared problem is employers and employees preempting customers from business district parking spaces.

I don't know how long we have had today's parking problem but in fairness to all concerned it is important to point out that most of the parking that is causing the trouble is perfectly legal and forthrightly moral. Except for a predictable number of illegal abuses to city ordinances most of the "musical chairs" ritual does not break any laws. In fact, the employers and employees who each hour move their cars around the block to avoid getting tickets are not only abiding by the law but may not even be violating the original intent of the law.

I don't mean this as a defense of "musical chairs," but it does indicate a breach between the purpose of the time limit parking and what it actually accomplishes. If the purpose of the time limit parking is to prevent merchants and their employees from parking in the business district all day it is not accomplishing that purpose. They simply, and legally, move their cars from one space to another all day long. Most of them probably do not think they are doing anything wrong anyway. It is estimated that there are from 600 to 1000 cars involved in the game.

If the purpose is to get customers to shop faster then move on and permit other customers to park and shop, it is not accomplishing that purpose. I will give two very excellent examples of why I think it is not, but first let me correct a myth that I very often help to perpetuate.

There is a predominance of talk about how little is done to solve the parking problem. Actually, a great deal has been done and is being done to help alleviate the problem and nearly all of it by the city. Without cataloging specifics, there have been several new unobtrusive parking lots. There are new city ordinances regarding off street parking and truck parking. There has been a host of new street stalls. There has been experimentation with time limit parking at the request of the merchants. There has been a more sensitive approach to issuing parking citations. You can include also that there are no parking meters or high rise parking garages. I am sure there are many other things of which I am not aware. I do know I rarely see a City Council Agenda without something on it about parking.

One example of why I think time limit parking is not accomplishing its purpose is the following actual letter received in the Carmel Business Association office. Fortunately it is not typical and we do not receive many of these but it does reflect beautifully the attitude of receiving that extra little unanticipated charge. The letter follows:

Monterey-Carmel Muniicpal Court
Post Office Box 1565
Carmel, California 93921

Gentlemen:

Enclosed $2 covering a few minutes overtime parking in what I thought for the first hour was a beautiful city. We were having lunch at the Village Inn and did not get back within the hour. We (five of us) spent a total of $32.80 and the two dollars will bring this to a grand total of $34.80. The amount does not include $3 for the seventeen mile drive.

Thanks for the questionable Hospitality and may we avoid your city in the future.

Sincerely,
(Name withheld)

My first reaction was anger. I can point out several things to become defensive about not including the obvious errors. The fact remains this is a real letter from a real individual. He is mad enough about a $2 parking ticket to write a letter. He would probably have had to pay at least that much to park in any large city long enough to have lunch.

A "ticket," however, is irritating. A $2 parking charge or fee is bad enough but a parking ticket raises hackles. There is little doubt in my mind that most people are annoyed about receiving traffic or parking tickets any place, not only in Carmel. There is also no doubt that business would improve if customers and residents could park all day free of any parking charge, fee or fine.

My second example of why time limit parking does not necessarily accomplish its purpose is much more typical and much more common. I will acknowledge that isolated examples do not constitute a scientific study. I will also acknowledge that a fair number of people use the time limit parking as a handy excuse to bug out. I do so myself but there is no doubt of its validity as an honest purchasing deterrent on a considerable number of occasions.

When I first overheard this conversation, the young woman was saying, "Please Jack, it's my money and I can spend it any way I want to." He accented each of his words very carefully so that there was no chance she would not either hear or confuse what he was saying. "WE ARE ALREADY OVER PARKED. WE ARE LEAVING NOW." The young lady took off the suede coat, made a fumbling attempt to hang it back on the hanger, finally hung it over a clothes rack and left trying to catch up with him.

The ideal parking situation in Carmel, perhaps any city, would be to provide free, no-time-limit, close-in parking for all customers, and without changing the character of the town. Don't think that it is not possible.

About a month ago my wife and I drove to a nearby famous little town that has been blessed with plenty of parking spaces. We had heard about a very famous restaurant. It was Saturday. We arrived in town at 12:30 for lunch. We parked right exactly in front of the famous restaurant. We could have parked anywhere in the famous little town. There were no time limit parking spaces, no employees cars, no customers cars, no customers, no shoppers, no visitors, no tourists. We had our very famous lunch, then returned to Carmel that has been blessed with time limit parking spaces, employees cars, customers' cars, customers, shoppers, visitors and tourists. If a city has to be blessed with a problem, ours is blessed best.

Sunrise..... to Sunset

The plaintive strains of the bagpipes are all but gone, but the zest and skill lingers on. Once again, the Lockheed Bagpipe Band and its Scottish Highland Dancers exhibited an outstanding array of talent. Mr. Stan Patterson, president and leader of this fine group, took great pride in explaining the Scottish traditions as represented in their music and ethnic dances. It was, in the real sense, a cultural event.

As the people streamed in, following the footsteps of our eager pipers, it was reminiscent of a piper of another day. Many of the young children apparently were followers, unaccompanied by parents. Let me mention that children are always welcome at Forest, but we are very anxious that all children have parental supervision. Pole climbing, tree climbing, and roof scaling all have their place, but not during Forest Theater concerts on Sunday afternoons.

We are pleased to announce our seventh concert of the summer season. Nancy Ness Bowman will present her Opera Workshop on Sunday, August 23, at 2 p.m., at Mountain View and Santa Rita. This oft-repeated program heralds one of our finest local groups and I take my hat off to Mrs. Bowman (absolutely nó relation) for her blithe spirit and enthusiastic efforts in behalf of her students.

Three more concerts will be presented at Forest this summer. Following the Beyer String Trio and the Consortium Antiquum, the rousing music of the Fort Ord Army Band will wind up the 1970 summer season on September 13.

The two remaining events scheduled for August at Sunset Center are both unusual and excitingly different. The San Francisco troupe, "The Grass Roots Experience," will present "A Day of Absence" on Friday, August 21, at 8:00 p.m. This all-black troupe will present a Minstrel Show in reverse, having white faces. Their performance should prove to be both stimulating and thought-provoking in a humorous vein.

And don't forget the 30th of August. This will be "a really big show"—our own Monterey Film Festival award winners will be shown that Sunday evening in Sunset Theater. Mark this date on your calendar as a must!

Watch my column for future fall programs at Sunset Center. Due to the heavy activities on September 5, "Artists in Action" will be deleted for the first Saturday as regularly scheduled.

I would personally like to thank each and every one of you for your enthusiastic support of our programming both here and at Forest Theater. Mrs. Melvin and her volunteers of the Arts Coordinating Council will be on duty in the outer office at Sunset to keep you posted on the month's activities in this area. As a matter of fact, her master calendar should be of great assistance to all program planners, regardless of the activity planned.

See you next Sunday.

JEANNIE M. HUGHES as Annie Oakley and Rick Humm as rival sharpshooter Frank Butler have the lead roles in "Annie Get Your Gun" at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant. Their duet of "An Old Fashioned Wedding" is a new number added to the show by Irving Berlin for its recent Broadway revival, in addition to old favorites like "No Business Like Show Business," "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun" and "Anything You Can Do, I Can Do Better." The popular musical may be seen nightly except Monday and Tuesday at the Studio through mid-September. Photo - Richard Amrhein

Overflow audience enjoys concert

By Irving W. Greenberg

From Bach to Ginastera—that is a long road in musical evocation. But that is just the journey that the second concert of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars travelled, with Berlioz, Saint-Saens and Mozart to add to the enjoyment of the route.

After a short prelude for brass choir, the real work of the evening began. The first composition offered was The Overture to the Corsair, Op. 21, by Hector Berlioz, under the direction of Dr. Michael Zearott, the orchestral conductor for all these programs. The opening of this work seems to be a portrayal of the sea in a boisterous mood, followed by the Adagio sostenuto.

This work, which is rarely heard in the concert hall, was projected by the orchestra in an exceptionally vivid and turbulent rendition—at times, it seemed a little too resounding in the tone quality and the depth of sound that was evoked.

The J.S. Bach Cantata No. 191: Gloria in Excelsio Deo, performed by small mixed choral group under chorale director John S. Waddell, with an excellent piano accompaniment by Randy Behr, sounded at times somewhat evocative of some parts of the larger Bach works, such as the Mass or the Easter Oratorio.

In the Saint-Saens Concerto in B minor No. 3 for Violin and Orchestra, the guest soloist was Walter Verdehr, an artist in residence at Michigan State University. The forceful opening movement subject was delivered by the soloist, who showed through this movement an overt and expansive virtuosity.

The slow second movement, being the most attractive and imaginative, was equally well integrated with the strings in a lyrical motif, employing the semi-tonal key relationship, B flat, against the first movement's B minor. The finale was set off with a fine, impetuous energy by the soloist after an accompanied candeza.

After the two main contrasted themes were introduced by the soloist, the orchestral strings gave out a solo chorale in G major of great beauty in enunciation and delivery. A return to the cadenza followed by a recapitulation by the brass choir, and a final ending by the soloist and the divided strings, having a resemblance to Wagnerian inheritance.

After the intermission of 10 minutes, the Ginastera work: Lamentaciones de Jeremias Propheta was presented under Mr. Waddell.

This work, as marked in the program, is in three parts—O Vos Omnes Qui Transitis Per Viam,-Ego Vir Videns Paupertatem Meam-and Recordare Domine Quid Acciderit Nobis. Although I am not familiar with this particular score of Ginastera, the composition seemed to have a great deal of interest and to be much more impressive than the previous work by Bach.

The final work on the program, the Mozart Symphony No. 21 in A major, K. 201, was a little gem, particularly since it was composed by Mozart at the ripe age of 18! The four movementswere exceedingly well-played by one standing string section of violins and violas, one sitting section of cellos and bass viols, and a few winds added for tonal balance and weight.

All four movements were very well related in a tonal, shimmering kaleidoscope by the introspective and concentrative playing of the strings in all sections.

This second concert certainly more than bears out the promise of the first concert of a week ago, and seemed to be very much enjoyed by the overflow audience. Two more concerts, on Sunday evenings at 8 p.m. on August 23 and 30 and a final concert on Saturday evening at 8 p.m., September 5, have been announced.

Opera Workshop offers free program Sunday

REHEARSING for their program Sunday at Forest Theater are these members of the Opera Workshop (l-r): Nancy Ness Bowman, director; Camille Olaeta, accompanist; Joe Messineo, tenor; and Jean Canada.

A free program of selections from opera and Broadway musicals will be offered Sunday at Forest Theater, starting at 2 p.m. by the Monterey Peninsula Opera Workshop, founded and directed by Nancy Ness Bowman.

Soloists for the program:

Albert Best, tenor, a U.S. Naval Commander, now studying at the Naval Postgraduate School. He and his wife Harriette, soprano, are newcomers to the Opera Workshop.

Jean Canada, a native of Germany, is the wife of a U.S. Army officer. Her beautiful contralto voice has been heard in innumerable concerts in this area as well as abroad.

Joe Messineo, who majored in voice in college, and served with the Army in Korea. Since then he has made his fine tenor voice known in many concerts in this area.

Shui Ming Chan, a native of China, wife of a professor at the Naval Postgraduate School. Her charming soprano voice has been heard for several years with the Opera Workshop.

Nina Russo Taylor, soprano, a long-time member of the Opera Workshop, continued her training at San Francisco State College. She returns to sing an aria from "Madame Butterfly."

John Roberts, baritone, with the Opera Workshop for the summer, teaches vocal music at Cerrito High School.

Lucy Bowman, soprano, wife of a retired Army officer, has been with the Opera Workshop from its beginning, more than ten years ago.

Leslie Goldring, mezzo-soprano, youngest member of the Workshop, is now attending Monterey Peninsula College.

Accompanist for Sunday's program will be Camille Olaeta, accomplished pianist, who has been with the Opera Workshop almost from the start.

Nancy Ness Bowman, director of the Opera Workshop, is a native of Bergen, Norway. She has sung 25 leading parts in many of the largest Opera Houses in Europe. She is now a resident in Carmel where she has opened a vocal studio and Opera Workshop.

Forest Theater is located in the pines at 8th and Mountain View in Carmel. This series of summer concerts is sponsored by the City of Carmel. For more information, call 624-3996.

What's In A Name? PLENTY if

—The builder's name is Hugh Comstock

—The place name is Carmel Point

In Carmel's most desired location we present a timeless traditional home suiting perfectly the many moods of Carmel. Friendly wood fires in a handsome fireplace in a wood-paneled, gracious living room, or in the cozy kitchen for the misty days. Mullioned windows open to intimate little patios for enchanting "looking" when it's gloomy and outdoor enjoyment when it's sunny, all enclosed by fine old stone walls which have taken on a lovely patina over the years.

It's a two-story, storybook house, on a large scale, built with Hugh Comstock's usual attention to fine construction and infinite detail, and the floors and millwork reflect his personal interest in the job. The special taste and care in decorating by the present owners underscore the mellow charm and graciousness of an earlier time—and it's all in "new" condition.

Even in the kitchen, with its country feeling, every modern convenience is unobtrusively incorporated, and this is typical of the feeling of the entire house. It's just around the corner from the sea, so beachwalking is always your pleasure. (For that matter, just walking around on Carmel Point is a delight!) If traditional architecture is your fancy, and if the price is within your range, why not allow us the pleasure of showing you its charms.

PARTY PLANS . . .

by Phyllis Jervey

When Elaine and Pierre Boissiere came to Carmel eight years ago, they had a dream which has become increasingly real. In Magnin Square a truly French country house was designed and constructed according to their specifications. All the furnishings were imported from France, the round tables and cane-backed chairs with blue cushions, the fleur de lys tiles on the fireplace. The motto thereon syas "Toujours flotter, jamias sombrer" ("Always floating, never sinking") which pertains equally to la belle France and to the courageous Boissiere family.

Coming from their native Orleans, France, with their two young daughters, this ingenious couple adjusted to American ways but insisted that their enterprise would remain purely French. And so the first 'Salon de The et Patisserie fine' (French Pastry Shop and Tea Room) was established in the French House, Carmel.

At first it was rather slow going with calorie conscious American ladies shying from those gorgeous pastries at tea time. In Europe tea time is still "in." Dinner appears until around nine or ten. But with most of us here having TV dinners about sevenish, patisseries are something we do not exactly need in mid-afternoon. What a temptation!

So astute Elaine and Pierre decided to change the original pattern. Today they open at 10:30 a.m. with le petit dejeuner consisting of the most divinely flaky buttery croissants and brioches and wickedly strong mocha served in demi-tasses.

Tourists have no difficulty in imagining they are in France. They read the PINE CONE in detail. Your reporter was witness to this, especially when Florence appeared with her folded papers and we thought she was a boy! Were we told off!

The Boissieres work en famille. Pierre bakes every luscious pastry, dominoes, napoleons, babas au rhum, Mona Lisa, amandines, plus petits pains and the most exquisitely decorated cakes anyone has ever tasted or seen. They are ready to go-go.

Lunch starts at 11:30 a.m. and continues until 6 p.m. This is the only place in our village where distinctive French food is continuously served with vitesse (speed) for seven and a half hours.

Here is the daily menu:

Potages

Soupe Julienne — Clam Chowder

(Homemade Vegetable Soup) with Sherry Wine

Hors d'Oeuvres

Ham in French Roll

Swiss Cheese Puff Pastry

Veal Pastry Roll — Quiche Lorraine

Salades

Marie Antoinette: Tomatoes stuffed with crab and shrimp; Pompadour: Tomatoes stuffed with vegetables macedoine.

Entrees include Coquille Saint Jacques: scallops, shrimp, mushrooms in a cream sauce with sherry, served steaming in a scallop shell.

Bouchee a la Reine: sweetbreads and mushrooms with cream sauce in pastry shell. Delicieux!

Roulade de celeri: heart of celery, wrapped with ham, baked in cream sauce and Swiss cheese, served bubbling.

Poulet Provencale: Half a young chicken in white wine sauce with tomatoes, olives, served with buttered rice.

Your reporter has a great penchant for their daube de boeuf Bourguignon...tender beef in Burgundy...recipe follows.

Filet de sole Bearnaise has the most delicate flavor what with a white wine sauce and sweet butter, shallots, fresh crumbled tarragon (only a soupcon).

And then the final triumph! Currie de Crevettes: Shrimp Curry on a fluffy bed of the most seductive rice...avec condiments. What is there left to say? Luncheons which last all day are too superbe chex les BOISSIERES!

BOEUF BOURGUIGNON

Two lbs. top round of best beef, 2 T. butter, 2 T. brandy, 12 small pearl onions, 12 firm white mushrooms, quartered, 1 t. meat glaze, 3 T. flour, 1 cup straight bouillion, 2 cups best dry red wine, bouquet of herbes (tied into a double cheesecloth bag...with a long string attached to be easily removed), salt and pepper and freshly snipped parsley.

Cut beef into medium squares and brown quickly in hot butter. Pour the brandy over this. Remove beef from pan. Put peeled onions in same skillet with the butter-brandy mixture and saute lightly; add mushrooms cooking one minute (isn't there a speed limit?) Add meat glaze plus flour, stir into a smooth sauce. Pour on stock, stir until mixture comes to a gentle boil. Add some more red wine. Season and add beef with herbs. Simmer until beef is very tender...but do not permit that super sauce to evaporate...just add more red wine! Serve on rice...top with parsley. Who could ask for anything else. Excepting to go to les BOISSIERES (Mission between Ocean & Seventh, Carmel) and give them my love...signed Phyllis.
